Katerin Amaya Miranda

Katerin Amaya has well over a decade of experience practicing intellectual property, having worked for other leading IP firms prior to joining Mayora IP in 2026.

In addition to handling a wide range of IP matters during her private practice journey, Katerin previously worked at the First Contentious-Administrative Chamber of the Supreme Court of Justice, where she was involved in administrative-litigation matters and legal drafting in accordance with the legal framework of Salvadoran Administrative Law and its applicable procedural regulations. This background gives her a deep understanding of the regulatory and procedural frameworks that underpin the protection and enforcement of IP rights in El Salvador.

Katerin has also practiced IP independently, developing strong client management skills and a practical understanding of business needs in the IP space. At Mayora IP, she combines a focused and strategic perspective on the lifecycle of intangible assets with the operational and commercial needs of clients, all against a backdrop of her unique public-administrative insight as to how IP disputes are evaluated and resolved at the very highest level.
